Music is not something that is just there, waiting to be consumed for our listening pleasure. Whether recorded, written, or performed, music is an important cultural register for representing and negotiating social tensions, problems, and systematic forms of oppression and empowerment between human beings, including racism, heteropatriarchy, and class exploitation. Departing from an understanding that music, performance, and culture in general are inherently political in that they are channels for exchanging powerful ideas and sentiments that shape our collective thoughts and behaviors, this course explores the possibilities and limitations for social change through music. This requires that we read this form of cultural production not as good or bad, resistive or oppressive, but rather in a way that examines what it does qualitatively within particular political, economic, geographic and historical contexts. Our class discussions will also weigh the many ways music can make our world a more equitable, and sustainable place against the fundamental political and economic obstacles that keep it from fulfilling its radical humanist potential.

A note about readings:

You will not be required to purchase any books for this class. All readings will be available for download in PDF format via our course's blackboard website which can be accessed at http://ted.ucsd.edu.

NOTE: Readings and assignments are subject to change. This syllabus is not a contract, so make sure you stay up to date on any possible changes to the readings or the schedules. If I do make changes, I mention it in class and email you notifying you of these changes ***

Projects, Assessment, and Grade Distribution

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Component</th>
<th>Percentage</th>
<th>Notes</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Attendance and participation</td>
<td>15% e/a = 30% (of final grade)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Reflection papers (5 of them)</td>
<td>8% e/a = 40% (*)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Online quizzes on the readings (2 of them)</td>
<td>5% e/a = 10% (*)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Final project</td>
<td>20% (*)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Attendance and Participation

I expect you to attend all class meetings and participate actively. I will take points off for every absence (I only make exceptions if you bring me a valid medical or written excuse). I will also take points off if you don’t participate in class and show me that you’re keeping up to date with the reading and the discussion. If you are a shy person and do not feel as comfortable as others speaking in class, please try to make up for this by stopping by my office hours for a chat, which also counts toward participation or by emailing me your questions or observations about the readings or lectures.

Reflection Papers (5 of them) – For an alternative to this, see Djing option below.

You will have to complete five 2pp. long reflection papers over the course of the quarter. I will send you writing prompts for these. All paper assignments will be uploaded to Turnitin.com (via our TED Blackboard). That means you don’t have to turn in a paper copy.

The minimum requirements for these are:

- that you turn in at least one reflection paper per week after Week 1. In other words, don’t turn in all five of them at the very end of the summer term, because I won’t have time to grade them!!! Failure to turn in at least one reflection paper per week will result in point deductions.

- at least two of these reflection papers must be on a song/musical performance of your own choosing that relates to the topics discussed in class (I will give you a handout with some tips on what to look for when you write analytically about music).
  - Note: Whenever you write about a particular song, please send me the link via email. You can search for it in either youtube, spotify, rdio.com, grooveshark.com, or any similar free online streaming service. You can also upload it to a website that allows me to download it, as long as you send me the link. If it’s not there and you happen to have an mp3 file of it, please email me the file.

- the rest of the reflection papers will contain your own insights about whatever readings are assigned on a particular day. In other words, choose a session in the syllabus and write about the readings for that session. Don’t just summarize the text. I want to read your own ideas about the topics discussed on that day.

In-class Djing option

Instead of writing the minimum of two reflection papers based on songs of your choosing, you also have the option of doing one or two in class presentation in which you will DJ for us and talk about songs that relate to what we’ve been talking in class. In other words, this is a kind of “show and tell” option. Your presentation must be at least 10 minutes. You can do this once or twice during the summer session. You will receive a grade equivalent to what you would have received if you would have turned in a written down version of your presentation. The main requirement (if you decide to pursue this option once or twice) is that you email me the day before you are planning on doing this so that I can reserve some time for you during lecture.

Final Project

The final project is due on Friday, August 2 (our designated final exam time) at 4:00pm. If your project is only a text document, you will upload it to the TED Blackboard. If it’s something that can be sent via email (e.g., a song, video, presentation, etc.), you will email it to jfuste@ucsd.edu. If it is something that requires to be turned in, you will bring it to the Ethnic Studies Office (2nd floor, Social Science Building) before 4:00pm.

For the final, choose one of the following three options:

a. Research paper (7pp. long): This paper should analyze one or several examples of how music functions politically in society. Examples can be contemporary or historical. Your paper should not only convey the who, what, when, and where of the examples that you researched, but also how it connects the course themes and theoretical frameworks. One more thing: make sure the paper has a thesis that guides your analysis.

b. Ethnographic paper (7pp. long): An ethnographic study consists of a research project that uses qualitative research methods to provide a detailed, in-depth description of everyday life and practice. Normally, an ethnographer conducts interviews, takes notes of these and/or records them, and both observes whatever she is studying (e.g., a particular kind of musical performance) while also actively participating in either the performance or in interacting with the crowd that is observing it. If you choose this option, you will write a short ethnographic paper on a musical event/performance (or a series of these) of your own choosing. Like the research paper, it too must have an “angle” or a thesis that guides its analysis (NOTE: I have some good handouts with advice on how to write ethnography papers so if you decide to go down this route, email me and I’ll send them to you).

c. Creative Project (due: project + 2-3pp. “process essay”): This option offers you the opportunity to do a creative project that relates to the topics discussed in class. Possible formats include video documentaries, “radio documentaries” (ask me what this is), original songs or compositions, a video-recorded spoken word performance, a visual arts project or series about music, a recorded dance or performance art piece, a photo essay, a mock website, any form of graphic design, a presentation of art criticism, a series of t-shirts or fashion, other kinds of material objects of your creation, or pretty much any format that might suit your talents (including mixed media formats that combine these). Also, you will have to submit a 2-3pp. “process essay” that reflects on how your creative project relates to the themes we will be discussing in our class meetings (see instructions for that below). NOTE: songs should be 2-5 min max., dance and performance pieces should be 5-10 minutes, videos should be 2-5 min max., photo essays must include at least 10 substantially different photos.

IMPORTANT NOTE: Whatever option you choose, you are required to clear your proposed idea with me by July 26, 2013 (that is, a week before the project deadline).

Late Work Policy

All papers will be uploaded to Turnitin.com via our course’s blackboard website (i.e.,
Late submission of assignments will be accepted only in verifiable emergencies, and only by arrangement with me prior to 2:00 p.m. on the due date. Assignments turned in late without prior approval will be graded down 7 points for each 24-hour period past the due date (no exceptions).

Academic Dishonesty

Scholastic dishonesty is any act by a student that misrepresents the student's own academic work or that compromises the academic work of another. Examples include cheating on assignments or exams, unauthorized collaboration on assignments or exams, sabotaging another student’s work and plagiarizing. Plagiarism is presenting someone else’s work as your own, intentionally or not, by failing to put quotation marks around passages taken from a text or failing to properly cite quoted material. The University guideline for penalizing academic misconduct is determined by the professor of the course. Any act of academic dishonesty may result in one’s failing the course.

My Email Policy

Please email me with questions and/or concerns about the course. I will respond within the next 24 hours. If you have an important personal question such as inquiring about a grade or class discussion, please visit me during office hours or schedule an appointment with me.

A Note About Reading Volume

Research indicates that the average U.S. college student reads about 20 pages per hour. As you will notice below, I’ve assigned about 180 pages of reading per week (i.e., approx. 9 hours of reading per week, considering that the average college student reads about 20pp. per hour). This is equivalent to what you would read in two classes during the regular 10 week quarter. Please make sure that you stay on top of the readings! Summer courses are no joke!!!

Majoring or Minoring in Ethnic Studies at UC San Diego

Many students take an Ethnic Studies course because the topic is of great interest or because of a need to fulfill a social science, non-contiguous, or other college requirement. Often students have taken three or four classes out of “interest” yet have no information about the major or minor and don’t realize how close they are to a major, a minor, or even a double major. An Ethnic Studies major is excellent preparation for a career in law, public policy, government and politics, journalism, education, public health, social work, international relations, and many other careers. If you would like information about the Ethnic Studies major or minor at UCSD, please contact Daisy Rodríguez, our Ethnic Studies Undergraduate Advisor, at 858-534-3277 or d1rodriguez@ucsd.edu.
Weekly Reading Schedule

Remember, all readings will be posted as PDF files on our blackboard homepage

I. Theoretical and Methodological Introduction: Decoding Identity and Culture

Session 1A: Monday, July 1 –

First class; no readings assigned.

Session 1B: Wednesday, July 3 – 140pp. of reading

II. Music as a locus of identity formation and contestation

Session 2A: Monday, July 8 – 77pp. of reading + 117 min of video viewing

Session 2B: Wednesday, July 10 – 117pp. of reading

III. Making oppositional communities through music

Session 3A: Monday, July 15 – 84 pp. of reading

Session 3B: Wednesday, July 17 – 102 pp. of reading

IV. Crossing (racial/ethnic/national) borders: possibilities for social change

Session 4A: Monday, July 22 – 82 pp. of reading

Session 4B: Wednesday, July 24 – 110pp. of reading

V. Dangerous crossroads: walking the tightrope between commodification and resistance

Session 5A: Monday, July 29 – 95pp. of reading

VI. Listening to the world: intercultural cosmopolitanisms or aural colonialisms?

Session 5B: Wednesday, July 31 – 100pp. of reading

