This course takes up the histories and cultures of US imperialism in the Philippines and Filipino/a migration to the US through 20th century (post-WWII) literature and film. We will focus on the complex relationship between the history of Philippine national independence and US immigration in order to highlight the intersections of race, class, and gender relations in the US with the continuities of colonial order in the Philippines. Yet we will analyze this relationship in a specific way: i.e., not solely through a general description of Philippine history or analysis of Philippine society, but rather through a focus on cultural objects and activities. Of particular interest will be the way these objects and activities come to designate cultural subjects or identities – the “Filipino” (Pinoy or Pinay), “Fil-Am,” “Amboy,” “immigrant,” “Asian-Am,” and so forth – that are distinguished from those of the prewar era (“Filipino national,” “gook,” “nigger,” “Mongol,” etc.).
