Course Description

This course offers a survey of various theoretical and methodological approaches to the study of race, gender, sexuality and class. Moving beyond the notion that these social categories merely represent “layers of oppression,” we will ask: how are race, gender, sexuality and class co-constitutive in the making of social relations and identities in the US and beyond? In other words, how do these social categories depend on each other for their very meaning and coherence, so that it is impossible to neatly separate them? And, why is it that this impossibility has not prevented many theorists and activists from treating them as discrete categories, often privileging one over the rest?

To engage these questions, we will begin by turning to the terms themselves, attending to particular historical and geographic contexts of their construction: How have ideas about gender, race, sexuality and class been defined by the western law and science, through historical archives, and in the realm of popular culture? How have these constructs differed across territories and regions and how have they changed over time? Next, we will examine a set of case studies that will allow us to connect the construction and codification of social difference to the enactment of violent social projects: colonialism and war; nationalism and eugenics campaigns; globalization, immigration and structural adjustment. By the end of this course, it is my hope that we will have collectively honed a critical vocabulary and analytical framework for understanding the interplay of race, gender, ethnicity, sexuality, and class in a variety of socio-political contexts.

Course Objectives

This course will engage will many challenging but worthwhile ideas. Interdisciplinary by design, our reading list includes authors from a number of fields, some of which you may be familiar with, others of which will require patient attention. Please note that our goal in this class will not be to memorize or master a series of clear-cut answers; rather, by engaging in lively debate and learning from fellow colleagues, we aim to hone our ability to ask critical questions so as to further develop our skills as writers, readers, and thinkers.

Required Texts

Required course readings can be viewed and downloaded via our course website: ted.ucsd.edu

Accommodations

I wish to make this class as accessible as possible to all students. If you require accommodation please contact me via email or come by my office hours so that arrangements can be made. Please let me know if you prefer to be referred to by a different name or gender than the one under which you are currently enrolled.

Email and Office Hours Policies

I aim to respond to student emails within 48 hours. While I am happy to address brief inquiries via email, questions that require a longer response should be addressed during office hours. In order to accommodate as many students as possible, individual student appointments during my scheduled office hours will be 15-20 minutes in length.

Attendance and participation (20%)
Class participation and punctual attendance are a crucial component of this course. Students are expected to finish all reading assigned prior to class. Please be prepared to express your own critical questions and critiques of course materials and to participate actively in class discussions. An absence that results from extenuating circumstances will be excused; however, more than two unexcused absence will affect your final grade.

Discussion Points (25%)
Each week, with the exemption of those weeks when other assignments are due, students are responsible for the contribution of a “discussion point” that relates to course themes. A discussion point can take the form of a critical question or response to course readings, or an artifact (such as a news article, song or image). Please see the course calendar that follows for a list of due dates. Each DP assignment should be uploaded to the assignments folder on WebCT. Please include your name, the appropriate date, and a concise paragraph about how the question, critical reflection, or artifact that you have chosen relates to the key themes of the correlating week. Do bring a hard copy of the assignment so that you may share your critical questions and observations with your colleagues.

Short Paper (Midterm Assignment) (25%)
Midway through the quarter students will be required to write a short paper (1200-1500 words, approximately 4-5 pages each) in response to a theoretical question generated from course readings and themes. The question for the midterm will be distributed on Thursday May 2nd. Papers must be electronically to the Assignments folder on WebCT no later than Friday, May 10th at 5pm.

Final Paper (30%)
The final exam will consist of a theoretical questions generated from our comprehensive survey of course readings, to be distributed on Tuesday June 4th. Students will be expected to craft a response 5-7 pages in length, to be submitted electronically to the Assignments folder on WebCT no later than Tuesday June 11th at 10pm. Please note that late exams will not be accepted.
