INTRODUCTION & COURSE DESCRIPTION

This four credit course will provide an in-depth exploration of the legal issues surrounding sexuality and the way law regulates sexuality and sexual orientation. The objective of the course is to familiarize students with the historical relationships between the law and its treatment of sexuality; to introduce students to the historical legal and doctrinal context as well as academic theory relating to sexuality; and to enable students to expand legal-thinking such that they can meaningfully explore the interrelationships between sexuality, gender, sexual orientation and the law and legal developments through course readings, material and class discussion.

An important goal of the course is to develop a deeper understanding of the critical constitutional law concepts in the areas of the First Amendment, Substantive Due Process and Equal Protection doctrine. Specific constitutional law topics include privacy, free speech, association rights, criminal regulation of sexual conduct, and equal protection doctrine as applied to sexuality.

The text for the course is W. Eskridge, Jr. & N. Hunter, Sexuality, Gender and the Law (Foundation Press), 3d Ed., 2011.

The class meets Monday from 6:00 p.m. to 8:50 p.m. There is so much material to cover that it’s important to start class on time. We will be hard-pressed to finish all the material by the end of the semester. To get the most out of this class, you will be required to do a lot of reading, re-reading and case summaries. It is also helpful if you talk in class. Students who are able to articulate concepts in class generally do quite well on the exams.

You are not permitted to record the lectures or class discussion. These lectures are dialogue between you, your classmates and me. They are not intended for posting or use in other forums. Please respect this request.

ACADEMIC DISHONESTY

Fair and effective education requires academic honesty, and any violation is a very serious matter. UCSD rules concerning academic dishonesty are spelled out in the Student Conduct Code. Note especially the strict prohibition against plagiarism, i.e., submitting as your own or without proper attribution work done wholly or in part by another person. Plagiarism includes unauthorized collaboration on course assignments. Exams are closed-book, with no aids allowed. These rules will strictly be enforced. Any academic dishonesty will without exception be reported to the student’s dean for disciplinary action. Please go to the following website for the entire UCSD Conduct Code: http://students.ucsd.edu/student-life/_organizations/studentconduct/ regulations/index.html).

CONTROVERSIAL TOPICS

Students of all viewpoints, philosophies, religions, and backgrounds are encouraged to express their thoughts in this class. In fact, it is critical to the success of the course. Open communication between classmates, regardless of your social, political or religious views or status is fundamental to achieving a full dialogue on these contentious and sometimes divisive topics. There is only one rule that MUST unequivocally be followed: all class participants must treat each other with courtesy and respect. There will be ABSOLUTELY no personal attacks or name-calling. This class will emphasize your reasoning and analysis skills – not the arguments you make or the positions you support or defend. Indeed, class discussion relies on your ability to present oral argument in support of a legal position even when (especially when) you personally do not agree with that position.

DISCLAIMER

Strong and sometimes-offensive language will be used in the class. There will also be frank and graphic discussions about sexuality, including but not limited to, viewing graphic and sexually explicit photographs (particularly during the film “Dirty Pictures”) The candor required for this course, and the use of said language and pictures, is necessary to properly convey the material – particularly the material on the First Amendment. If you believe you will find such language or photographs offensive, you need to drop this class!
