Course Description

The United States Congress is the most studied branch of U.S. Government, and it is central to our understanding of policy, elections, and representative democracy. The purpose of this course is to examine two fundamental questions: (1) what do members of Congress do and why and (2) how do the individual and collective actions of members of Congress explain national policy? We will examine the process of legislating as well as the role of political parties, leaders, and interest groups. Throughout, we will study how Congress has evolved and consider its effectiveness as an institution. This course will examine the nomination and election of members of Congress, constituent relationships, the development of the institution, formal and informal structures, leadership, comparisons of House with Senate, lobbying, and relationship with the executive branch. We will also compare the role of Congress in domestic policy to its role in foreign policy.

Required Materials

The following book is required (print or e-book version); either the first or second edition is fine. It is available at the campus bookstore.

- Shipan, Charles R., E. Scott Adler, and Jeffery A. Jenkins. The United States Congress. New York, NY: W.W. Norton Company

All other required readings will be available online through UCSD's academic journal access (you will need to use the university's VPN in order to access these electronically if you are off-campus).

Academic Integrity

Students are expected to maintain the highest standards of academic integrity. Cheating, plagiarism, and other forms of academic dishonesty will not be tolerated and will be subject to disciplinary action consistent with University rules and regulations. Note that this applies to exams, simulation activities, written papers, and any other form of class assignment. Students are expected to familiarize themselves with University regulations regarding plagiarism and academic dishonesty.

Course Requirements

- Midterm (35%): Held on Thursday, May 4th. The midterm will cover all class material covered through (and including) class on Tuesday, May 2nd. Midterm will be taken in class (closed note). It will be a mix of multiple-choice questions and an essay answer.
- Member of Congress Background (20%): Due Tuesday, May 16th. You will choose a member of Congress and research the member online in order to answer questions on the member's background, electoral history, and legislative activity. Questions for this assignment (approximately 2 double-spaced pages) will be distributed on Canvas.
- Final Exam (45%): The final exam will be cumulative and held on the date assigned by the university (Monday June 12th). Final will be taken in class (closed note). It will be a mix of multiple-choice questions, short answers, and essay answers.

Office Hours
