This class will focus on the role of political parties as intermediaries of choice in modern democratic societies. Although a discussion of party government cannot take place in the absence of cross-national comparisons, this class will concentrate on the development of party in the U.S. as one example of a particular variant of modern party politics. Many of the comparisons made in this class will be historical. We can better understand where we are if we know where we have been. A special emphasis will also be placed on the changing (or perhaps not changing) role of third parties, or their modern surrogates (primary combatants? dark money), in that historical progression.

We will spend a great deal of time in the second half of this course studying the major environmental and procedural changes that have transformed (and continue to transform) the American partisan universe into its present, complicated, sometimes discouraging, and increasingly polarized state. We will discuss the transformation of campaigning, nominating, and financing elections, and the role of parties and other institutions (national and state) in that transformation. The student should leave this section with an understanding that: (1) rules and reforms are never neutral; (2) no one is ever quite sure what the results of reform will be; (3) no reform is perfect because politics does not operate within a perfect universe; and (4) individual political behavior both dictates and is constrained by changes in the political environment, including court decisions, new media venue (can we say “Twitter”?), reality shows, the demise of the English language, etc.

The major thematic focus of this course is to study a seeming paradox in our political development: as we have democratized partisan processes, we may have produced less satisfactory and representative outcomes--yet we continue to ask for further democratic reform. We have drained the swamp and found, well, more swamp. Go figure!

REQUIREMENTS:

A. Attendance--in both body and mind.

B. Readings--should be completed before class discussion (a prerequisite for the second condition in A). A tentative schedule of readings begins on the back of this handout. I’ll mention the readings required each day as the lectures progress.

One thematic text is required and can be purchased online. It highlights an increasingly important theme--polarization: Abramowitz, The Great Alignment: Race, Party Transformation, and the Rise of Donald Trump

A course reader is available for purchase from Cognella Press (Order online at https://store.cognella.com/22041 -- the first few selections (20-30%) will be available through an online link to get you started with the course. Note that this is a new edition with a few deleted and a few added essays since the last.

In addition, to reduce costs, several other essays of various lengths will be required and will be available online either directly through the UCSD library server (access on campus or at home through a VPN connection). Directions for different platforms/operating systems can be found at:
C. Exams—One take-home midterm and one in-class/take-home final are scheduled for this course, each consisting of a choice of short and (for the final) long essays (I’ll explain how that works later). All will be designed to test your ability to think about, integrate, and logically organize the course readings and lectures.

- The midterm (take home) is scheduled to be turned in by Friday, February 14, 5PM through the “TurnItIn” CANVAS link for this class. The questions will be distributed by Wednesday, February 5 (CANVAS home page).
- The final (in-class) will be administered Tuesday, March 17, 11:30-12:59. A list of possible exam questions will be distributed by March 7.

NO EARLY FINAL WILL BE GIVEN...NO WAY...NO HOW!!!!!!!!!

Please note: any requests to review midterm and/or final exam grades must be made in writing (typed) with a full and detailed justification for the request.

D. Reading Guides—after the first week, I will post a series of suggestions about what you should gain from the readings. These are not meant to be all inclusive, but (I hope) might prompt you to read before the night before the exams are due. I find that students gain much more from my lectures if they do the readings in advance of the corresponding lecture.

Changes to this syllabus, as well as any review guides, assignments, PowerPoint PDFs, or date changes will be posted on the class web page (CANVAS). Please check it on a daily basis. Go to canvas.ucsd.edu. Your classes should be listed. If you are having trouble getting into CANVAS (students visiting from other campuses are especially vulnerable to this problem), please let me know as soon as possible.
POLICY ON CHEATING and PLAGIARISM

Failure--no exceptions.

“Cheating” includes copying from someone during the in-class exam or the take home final. You can help each other with general questions about basic concepts, facts, readings, lectures, citation style, etc. In fact, I strongly suggest you do so on a regular basis. On the other hand, collaborating on the final essay, either in preparation or final production, is strictly forbidden.

“Plagiarism” is the intentional use of another’s words (by direct transcription) or ideas (by paraphrasing) without attribution. University prohibitions against plagiarism are rather clear.
If you are not sure about what qualifies as cheating or plagiarism, please ask me to clarify and/or review the university policy:

http://academicintegrity.ucsd.edu/excel-integrity/define-cheating/index.html

INCOMPLETEs

The university grants us precious little discretion here. To qualify for an incomplete, I must demonstrate that you have been doing passable work (so you must have taken the midterm and passed it) and you must demonstrate a reason for requesting an incomplete that conforms to university guidelines (documented illness, death or emergency in the family, unexpected military deployment, etc.). Again, the university makes this decision—not me nor the graders.

OSD ACCOMMODATIONS

As per University and Federal regulations, all accommodation requests made through OSD certification will be honored. Please remind the professor one week before any quiz or exam date.

“SPECIAL” REQUESTS:

Most of you know that I am already fairly generous with grades. Please do not ask me to change grades because you “need them” to:

• maintain a scholarship
• retain your enrollment at the university
• impress your parents
• get into Harvard Law School

You will be graded on the merits of your work, not on your needs.
TENTATIVE OUTLINE OF READINGS: Available in your University Reader unless marked by an . The latter () can be accessed directly ("free online at") or on campus or at home through a VPN. If on campus, make sure you are connected via the secured, not guest wireless connections.
