

CGS 101 Gender and Globalization

Winter Quarter, 2024

Tuesday/Thursday 1100AM-1220PM

Warren Lecture Hall 2114

Capitalism
Zapatistas
Land Grabbing
Colonialism
Indigenous
Intersectionality
Agriculture
Ableism
Trans
Womxn
Crippling
Borderlands
State Violence
Queer
Anti-Globalization Movements
Neoliberalism
Resistance

Labor
BIPOC

Globalization
Land

Globalization is a process that creates, modifies, amplifies and severs economic, political and social links across the globe. Rooted in colonialism, fast-tracked by neoliberal capital's privatization and free trade discourses and spawning resistance ranging from individual acts to broad-based social movements, globalization disproportionately harms but also empowers BIPOC, Womxn, Trans and Queer Folk, Disabled People, Workers, and many others who have experienced its heavy hand. Globalization influences the construction of gender and sexual identities, and has created landscapes of extreme inequality, environmental destruction and conflict. In CGS 101, we will combine sampling theoretical concepts to describe these gendered, anti-Black, colonized and racialized landscapes with a focus on case studies that highlight the interplay between the devastation left in the wake of globalization and the resistance against it.

For more information,

contact bt werner bwerner@ucsd.edu

or check out <https://courses.complex-systems-laboratory.org/cgs101>